Why San Diego?

San Diego is known as one of the biggests and most populated cities in the United States, with diverse cultures and ethnicities. The diversity that San Diego has can provide a rich context for discussions about human and civil rights, as it brings various perspectives and experiences to the table. Being close to the U.S.-Mexico border, San Diego is at the forefront of immigration issues, and it also offers real-world insights into the challenges and human rights issues. San Diego is also known for its vibrant LGBTQ+ community, and there are numerous organizations dedicated to supporting this community.

Advocacy and Policy Resources

Casa Cornelia Law Center

<https://casacornelia.org/>

Casa Cornelia Law Center is a public interest law firm providing quality legal services to victims of human and civil rights violations. It seeks to educate others regarding the impact of immigration law and policy on the community and the public good. Since 1993, more than 15,000 children, women, and men have turned to Casa Cornelia for critical legal assistance and humanitarian protection. Casa Cornelia is the only non-profit law firm in San Diego County to provide free legal services to detained unaccompanied children

Meeting Focus: Overview of immigration and refugee law by associate attorney at Casa Cornelia as well as discussion on the services the law center offers.

Engage San Diego

<https://www.engagesandiego.org/>

Engage San Diego is a collaborative network of social-justice focused, non-profit groups working to increase civic and voter engagement in historically and systemically excluded communities of San Diego County. Engage San Diego table members are established and effective civic engagement and social change organizations with deep roots in the neighborhoods they serve. Its vision is a San Diego where the electorate and leadership are reflective of people who live and work here.

Mid-City CAN Advocacy Network

<https://www.midcitycan.org>

Mid-City CAN's mission is to create a safe, productive, and healthy community through collaboration, advocacy, and organizing. They work with residents and partners to drive positive change across many systems and issues rather than coming in as an outside force. They hold events open to the public, training to foster growth, and have a Youth Council to inspire and prepare youth to take a more active role in their communities.

Viet Vote

<https://vietvotesd.org/>

Viet Vote is dedicated to bringing all the information about voting to the Vietnamese community. They are a non-profit, non-partisan organization and therefore do not take a position on candidates. They share information about how and where to vote but not who to vote for. They come together to build community voice, leaders, and meaningful relationships through civic engagement, partnerships, trainings, and events.

PANA - Partnership for the Advancement of New Americans

<https://www.panasd.org/>

PANA fights to advance the full economic, social & civic inclusion of refugees in the San Diego region, throughout California, and across the country. PANA is founded, led, and staffed by refugees and are uniquely situated to use relational organizing to bring community into a pathway of ongoing engagement and indigenous community leadership development.

Meeting Focus: Discussion with the above partner organizations to explore and educate on Engage San Diego and how they work together to promote civic engagement among minorities.

Government Resources

City of San Diego Human Relations Commission

<https://www.sandiego.gov/human-relations>

The mission of the Human Relations Commission (HRC) is to promote activities that foster understanding, respect, and inclusion in San Diego. The HRC believes in protecting basic Human and Civil Rights, while ensuring that San Diegans have the resources available to make positive impacts in their lives. The HRC is comprised of some of the region's most talented and community-focused volunteers that San Diego has to offer. As an advisory commission to the Mayor and City Council, the HRC is empowered to collaborate with civic institutions, educate the public, investigate policy to make our city better, advocate on issues to the Mayor and Council, and mediate disputes of discrimination, exclusion, and bias in the City of San Diego.

Meeting Focus: Explore how the HRC collaborates with local stakeholders to advocate and mediate human and civil rights issues in San Diego, particularly as it relates to marginalized populations and communities.

Roundtable Discussion

Leon L. Williams San Diego County Human Relations Commission

<https://www.sandiegocounty.gov/content/sdc/lwhrc.html>

The San Diego County Human Relations Commission (HRC) works to promote positive human relations, respect, and the integrity of every individual regardless of gender, religion, culture, ethnicity, sexual orientation, age, or citizenship status. They carry this work out through strategic goals including fostering healthy relationships, how to become a liaison in civil peace, communicating with and to the public, and more. Their goals and strategic areas aim to increase accessibility and transparency in county government to make better use of resources for community advocacy. They are also working to create safe spaces for the community to host difficult conversations to promote positive human relations and development.

Adeem Ismaeil, Employment Training Supervisor, International Rescue Committee San Diego County HRC Member

The International Rescue Committee helps people affected by humanitarian crises to survive, recover, and rebuild their lives. As Employment Training Supervisor, Adeem is responsible for supporting new Americans in their search for suitable employment, and ensuring that they receive adequate training to enter the workforce. She will predominantly join this conversation as a representative of HRC.

Jordan Harrison, Inclusion, Diversity & Equity Senior Manager, Vertex Pharmaceuticals San Diego County HRC Member
<https://www.jordanjharrison.com/>

Jordan Harrison is an educator working to transform antiqued systems and the inequities that stem from injustice. He is committed to changing the outcomes of low-income, underrepresented and first-generation students from under-served communities worldwide and across different contexts. Jordan will predominantly join this conversation as a representative of HRC.

Meeting Focus: Participate in a roundtable discussion featuring key representatives of the San Diego County Human Relations Commission to provide a nuanced conversation on how human and civil rights can be promoted within governmental organizations, and what is being done within San Diego County to advocate for human and civil rights.

Diversity & Inclusion by County of San Diego
<https://www.sandiegocounty.gov/content/sdc/diversity.html>

The County of San Diego's Office of Equity and Racial Justice is dedicated to fostering a community that values diversity, inclusivity, and equity. This department works to dismantle systemic racism and discrimination through strategic policies, practices, and initiatives that promote fair treatment and equal opportunities for all residents. By engaging with the community and addressing their unique needs, the office develops and implements programs that advance equity and justice. The department also collaborates with various stakeholders to ensure that diversity and inclusion are prioritized across all county operations.

Meeting Focus: Explore strategies for developing and advocating for policies that address these challenges, ensuring they are inclusive and equitable.

City of San Diego Department of Race and Equity
<https://www.sandiego.gov/race-equity>

The Department of Race & Equity is grounded in the knowledge that institutional racism, implicit and explicit bias, inequity and injustice are embedded in the systems and structures of government. In the United States, these centuries-long systems of oppression are rooted in white supremacy and anti-Blackness, creating structural disparities that we wrestle with today. The department aims to dismantle institutional racism because racial disparities permeate our current systems of Health, Education, Criminal Justice, Workforce, and Housing – just to name a few. This requires an intersectional lens to address the interconnected oppressions that compound disparities, which occur across the lines of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, people with disabilities, age, etc. The department's aim is to redesign current systems that are intentionally structured to produce inequitable outcomes, and to collectively build better ones that promote the thriving of all people and neighborhoods in San Diego.

Meeting Focus: Share effective methods for engaging marginalized communities in the decision-making process and ensuring their voices are represented and heard.

City of San Diego Committee for Diversity & Inclusion

<https://www.sandiego.gov/cityattorney/divisions/criminal/diversity-and-inclusion-committee>

The San Diego City Attorney's Diversity and Inclusion Committee is dedicated to promoting an inclusive and equitable workplace within the City Attorney's Office. The committee actively works to foster diversity, eliminate bias, and ensure that all employees have the opportunity to succeed and thrive. Through various initiatives, including training programs, community engagement efforts, and internal policies, the committee strives to create a supportive and welcoming environment that reflects the rich diversity of San Diego's community. Their commitment to diversity and inclusion enhances the office's ability to serve all residents effectively.

Meeting Focus: Discuss what are some effective strategies for reaching and informing marginalized communities about available legal resources.

<https://www.immigrantsandiego.org/>

The San Diego Immigrant Rights Consortium brings together more than 50 diverse organizations across San Diego County that advocate for policies that advance the civil and human rights of immigrants and refugees. Beginning in 2007 as a project of Alliance San Diego, this organization aims to support comprehensive immigration reform, prevent the spread of local policies that violate immigrant's human rights, and to educate immigrants about their rights, as well as enlighten the public about the important contributions immigrants offer to the community.

Meeting Focus: Roundtable discussion with various organizations within the consortium to discuss the various ways they advocate and collaborate on behalf of immigrant communities.

Community Advocates for Just and Moral Governance (MoGo)

<https://moralgovernance.org/>

Community Advocates for Just and Moral Governance (MoGo) promotes good governance. MoGo is committed to engaging in litigation and various forms of advocacy that will make government more just and fully accountable to all people, particularly those who have been marginalized from society. MoGo was founded by two Black women lawyers who have dedicated their lives and careers to secure racial equality, social justice, and greater access to quality education. Current MoGo campaigns include: stopping discriminatory policing practices against Black people, Indigenous people, people of color, LGBTQ individuals, and individuals with disabilities; protecting San Diegans' fourth amendment rights in regard to transparent and responsible use of surveillance technology in San Diego; and working to bring ranked choice voting to San Diego to improve voter turnout.

Meeting Focus: Learn about impact litigation and other strategies and tools utilized by MoGo to advocate for marginalized populations and promote government accountability.

MAKE Projects

<https://www.sdmake.org/>

MAKE Projects mission is to create an inclusive San Diego by preparing refugees and immigrants to achieve their dreams. They are an employment social enterprise where they operate an urban farm, restaurant, and events/catering company to provide a paid, real-world work experience for low-income refugee and immigrant women and youth. They aim to provide trainees with job readiness skills to help them achieve their dreams. MAKE Projects vision is to see San Diegans cross social, racial, economic, and geographic lines as they gather over a common love of food, flavors, and cultures. They believe in the power of food to bring diverse populations together, unite a community, and educate each other about their history and differences, as well as their communities.

Meeting Focus: Visit MAKE Projects urban farm, hear about their story, and discuss their model and integration efforts.
